School Notes

With outdoor setting, against the packground of vines and shrubbery, the background of vines and shrubbery, the "Fageant of the Hours," as produced Monday night at the El Paso School for Girls was a most beautiful spectacle and delighted a large audience. As a commencement exercise the production was unique, something very out of the ordinary for El Paso. The artistic, ordinary for El Paso. The artistic, imaginative spirit that pervaded the whole gave an esthetic pleasure that will not be soon fergotten by those who witnessed it. The symbolic dances gracefully executed added much to Mrs. Coles's health.

Hellena Wien, came noon, Elizabeth Sievens, truly a golden hour. Her golden hair bound with geld bands, a dress of gold color and a golden hued tambourine, ber dance was most effective. The seventh hour was taken by Helen Stration, who introduced the afternoon. Olive Courchesne was the eighth flour, introducing the time for recreation and bleasure. She was followed by Alice Myles in the poppy dance symbolizing the glowing color of the afternoon; her contume of giorious red was very beautiful and the light effects while she executed her dance made it very fascinating.

executed her dance made it very fascinating.

Following the play spirit, with the uinth hour, Rose Adams, a butterfly dance was given by Jane Burges and Ruth Hill, in dainty filmy short white dresses, with gauzy sparkling wings. While they danced the chorus ang "Funiculi-Funicula." Sunset, Emilie Orsinbee, typified the soft glow of the western sky, her Grecian gown with embrudered Greek border being a most successful realization of the beauties of the sunset, a rosy gray and gold enchantment to the eye. Miss Ormsbee's gown was of her own design and fashioning.

Following the afterglow of the sunset came the silvery twilight, Margaret Elchardson, closing the eyes of the flowers as she passed. Her silver and gray gauzy draperies carried out the twilight idea. Night, Dorothy Stahmann, in a deep purple robe carried aioft the silver crescent and while the chorus rang 'The day is dying,' a myriad of stara. (Claytie May Collier, Genevieve Collins, Emma Buehler, Agnes Stewart, Fay Peek, Birdie Krupp, Clara Hawkins, May Kranzther, and Ruth Schwartz), flitted in and out of the colored lights with dreamy effect. After the ensemble, the diploma was presented to the graduate of the school, Margaret Hanson Richardson, by Horace B. Stevens, the newly elected president of the board of directors J. J.
